Native & Deer-Resistant Perennial Designations

Native Plant Designation

We are pleased to carry a broad selection of native and native cultivars that will appeal to your gardening customers. Not only do they add beauty to the landscape, but native plants chosen for suitable areas are low maintenance and provide food and shelter for birds, butterflies, and wildlife. We have used the continental United States as our geographical area. The native plants we sell are those that would be hardy in our Mid-Atlantic region from any place in the continental United States. We are considering that cultivars are native since they are selections of a native population.

Deer-Resistant Designation

We know how severe of a problem deer browsing is for many of you, so we have noted in the catalog the most 'Deer-Resistant' perennials. Please note that no plant is 100% 'deer-proof'. A starving deer will eat anything! Generally, these 'resistant' plants have rough, bristly, thorny stems or leaves, or they are very bitter-tasting or strongly-scented.

Itoh Peonies - named after the Japanese nurseryman Toichi Itoh who, in 1948, was the first to succeed in crossing Tree Peonies with Herbaceous Peonies. These hybrids created flower colors and forms unlike either parent.

Extremely difficult to propagate, they were only available as rare plants at extreme prices. Today, with the advent of tissue culture propagation, they are a perfect specimen for any garden.

3" Groundcovers & Green Mulch

3" Green Mulch

$31.50 - $70.00 per flat of 12 (square, black pots)

These native plants were chosen for their beauty and their 'ecological services'. This means that besides being good groundcovers and filler plants, they help native bugs and animals to thrive in your garden and replace the need for mulching if you desire. They can be used as filler plants in natural or meadow-style plantings as well as for groundcover or as part of a more traditional planting.

CLEMATIS PRUNING TYPES:

Type I:

This clematis blooms on the previous year's growth. Prune to keep them in desired space and to remove dead areas. Best time to prune this plant is right after it flowers.

Type II:

These clematis are large-flowered hybrids. Some bloom in the spring and rebloom in the fall, and some bloom in the spring and continue intermittently throughout the summer. These clematis bloom on 'old wood' - short shoots from the old wood. Prune only the dead wood in early spring after leaf-buds begin to open. Deadheading these clematis can increase the number of flowers for summer blooming.

Type III:

These fast-growing clematis bloom in the summer on new wood. They should be pruned severely to 12-14" every year, in late winter, when the plants are completely dormant.
